Big U. S. Plane Lost In Atlantic Flight With 53 On Board

WASHINGTON — (AP) — A big Air Force transport plane with 53 aboard is missing on a flight over the Atlantic from the United States to England, the Air Force reported today.

One of those aboard was identified by the Air Force as Brig. Gen. Paul T. Cullen, deputy commander at Parksdale Field, near Shreveport, La., who was enroute to an undisclosed European destination.

Vanishes In Fog

Reports earlier from London said the transport, a C-124 known as Globemaster II, vanished in the rain and fog over the ocean after making a routine radio report last night (8 p.m., EST) that it was 800 miles southwest of Ireland.

American, British and Irish search and rescue planes combed the area where the plane was last reported without sighting any trace of wreckage or life rafts.

The Air Force said in mid-morning, however, it still held hope for the plane because it could have reached Iceland or The Azores. Communications with those areas have been bad for hours.

An Air Force spokesman said the giant transport had about eight hours of fuel left when it last reported. It was then within six hours flight of Ireland, Iceland or the Azores.

The air force said weather conditions have made radio communication very difficult in the North Atlantic and that messages have not gone through to several places where the missing plane could have landed.

One Lands Safely

Another big plane, a military air transport, was temporarily reported overdue on a flight from Iceland to this country. It later landed safely at Argentina, NFLD.

The missing plane was enroute from Limestone, Me., air base to the American base at Mildenhall in Suffolk, England.

Gen. Cullen is a specialist in air photo reconnaissance and commanded the air photo unit during the atomic bomb tests at Bikini in 1946.

During World War II, Cullen was deputy commander of the strategic air force unit which operated shuttle reconnaissance flights from the Ukraine in Russia.

Worst Drought In 80 Years Hits Holy Land

Good Friday Pilgrims March In Jerusalem

By FRED J. ZUSY

JERUSALEM — (AP) — Thousands of devout Christians made Good Friday pilgrimage through crooked streets of old walled Jerusalem today as a drought described as the worst in 80 years plagued the Holy Land.

Holy Week devotions neared the joyous Easter Sunday climax after weeks of sunny, clear weather.

Pilgrims—hundreds from abroad—today followed the storied route taken by Christ as he carried His cross to Calvary.

Some groups, retracing Christ's steps, as usual carried with them large wooden crosses through the winding and narrow cobblestoned streets.

Basilica's Bells Ring

The 14th and last station of the "Via Dolorosa" is the tomb inside the Holy Sepulchre where Christ's body was believed taken after His death on nearby Calvary.

Tonight, in a medieval Roman Catholic service at the Basilica of the Holy Sepulchre, a symbolic figure will be taken from a cross, bathed, anointed and laid in a tomb.

Archbishop Albert Gori, Roman Catholic patriarch of Jerusalem and the Holy Land last night washed the feet of junior priests in a Biblical re-enactment in front of the Basilica.

A solemn resurrection service Eastern morn, heralded by the ringing of the Basilica's many bells, will be attended by a large

Young Farmers Found Guilty Of Strangling Kalamazoo Coed, 19

KALAMAZOO, Mich. — (AP) — Pretty Carolyn Brown's murderers—by verdict of a jury—were Valorus Joe Mattheis and Ray Lee Olson.

The two were found guilty last night.

A jury in Kalamazoo county circuit court convicted them with surprising speed. The verdict required only 35 minutes of deliberation.

Life In Prison

For the crime the 22-year-old farm-bred defendants face life in prison.

First degree murder was the jury's verdict, and that calls for mandatory life sentences under

Only One Ballot

The jury's verdict brought to an end a dramatic fortnight of court room repudiation of confessions by the two young defendants and unprecedented legal maneuvering.

It was also a climax to one of Kalamazoo county's most atrocious crimes.

Carolyn, 19, a coed at Western Michigan college, was abducted, ravished and strangled Nov. 26 after she had left a snack bar in the campus district.

A week later her body was found in a snow bank on a farmer's field. The crime aroused the community as had few others of the area.

Jury foreman Bates said that only one ballot was taken.

"We talked it over for a few minutes and then took a vote," he said. "We were unanimous in our verdict on the first ballot."

Defense Department Soon To Halt Call Of Inactive Reservists

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The defense department hopes soon to stop calling inactive reservists to duty—unless the world situation grows worse or the individual reservist has rare military qualifications.

This word came from Mrs. Anna Rosenberg, assistant secretary of defense, in testimony before the Senate small business committee.

Mrs. Rosenberg said the defense department hopes to announce within a few weeks new overall reserve policies designed to bring more stability into the lives of reservists.

New Ship Names

SAULT STE. MARIE — (AP) — New names will be on two ships plying the Great Lakes this summer. The Yankaukanuck Transportation Co. of Sault Ste. Veteran Hunter, 108, Dies At Lebanon, Ore.

LEBANON, Ore. — (AP) — James W. Smith, who went deer hunting at 105, died yesterday at the age of 108. He was Oregon's last Civil War veteran.

He died in his small cabin in the nearby community of Waterloo, where he still carried his own wood and gardened until illness forced him inside six months ago.

He was a cavalry Indian scout for Union forces in the Pacific Northwest.

Glendale, Calif.—(AP) — One of the world's great religious paintings, Jan Styka's "Crucifixion" goes on display tonight after half a century of obscurity.

The mammoth oil—45 feet high and 195 feet long—is believed to be the world's largest on a Biblical subject.

The unveiling at Forest Lawn Memorial-Park, a Glendale cemetery, will be the highlight of dedication ceremonies for a $1,500,000 building erected to house the work.

Calvary Movie To Be Viewed By 40 Million

Story Of Crucifixion On TV And Radio

By JAMES R. BACON

HOLLYWOOD — (AP) — The largest television audience yet—40,000,000 persons—is expected to watch a movie this weekend about a hill in Korea and another hill—Calvary.

All 107 television stations in the country and the four networks (ABC, CBS, NBC and Dumont) will carry the movie "Hill Number One" at least once. Most stations will carry it two or three times and some five.

Top Stars Appear

Ruth Hussey, Joan Leslie, Gene Lockhart, Jeanne Cagney, Leif Erickson, Regis Toomey, Roddy McDowall and other Hollywood names appear in the movie—the third such production of Family Theater, Inc.

A Family Theater radio version of the crucifixion and resurrection story will be heard by millions more throughout the world Sunday night over MBS and the Armed Forces Radio Service.

These additional stars will be on the radio show: Licia Albanese and Marina Kosheva of opera; Jeff Chandler, Irene Dunne, Howard Keel, William Lundigan, Pat O'Brien, Rosalind Russell and Robert Ryan of the movies and Irish tenor Christopher Lynch.

The story of "Hill Number One" will depict the resurrection and crucifixion of Christ as told by flashbacks from Hill 46 on a Korean battle ground.

Cost Only $50,000

The movie, by ordinary Hollywood methods, would be a million dollar epic but it cost only $50,000 to make. The low figure was possible because of the movie's producer—the Rev. Patrick Peyton of the Roman Catholic Con-

British Crew Quits On Dairen Cruise

TOKYO — (AP) — The crew of a British merchant ship that won commendation for its part in the Korean Hungnam evacuation today refused to sail to Dairen, in Red China.

Tonight, the owners said they would neither imprison nor otherwise penalize the crew. Instead, said a message from the London shipping firm of P. B. Pandelis, the ship will be rerouted to another port, and it won't be in Red Chinese territory.

An official of a Yokohama shipping agent for Pandelis said he received the owners' message indicating support of the crew.

Of the 58 crewmen, several are White Russians, three are Nationalist Chinese. Others also are unwelcome in Red China because of their contact with United Nations forces in Korea, the Yokohama agent said.

It was also a climax to one of Kalamazoo county's most atrocious crimes.

Michigan Prison System Praised

Hoover Task Force Pins On Medal

LANSING — (AP) — A "Little Hoover Commission task force" today virtually pinned a medal on Michigan's corrections system as the target of critical investigations for a decade.

The task force head, Donald Clemmer, director on the district of Columbia department of corrections, said "Michigan has the questionable distinction of having built the biggest penitentiary in the world"—the State Prison of Southern Michigan.

Clemmer said the prison was far too big for efficient operation or the proper rehabilitation of inmates. He suggested sarcastically it be sold to the federal government for an arsenal for atomic bombs.

The report's principal recommendation was that the parole board be separated from the corrections department and expanded so that it could handle more inmates more adequately. Most states and the federal government divorce prisons and parole, Clemmer said.

Ambassador O'Dwyer Tagged For Perjury And Income Tax Quiz

By JOHN KOHN

NEW YORK — (AP) — Former Mayor O'Dwyer faces income tax and perjury probes stemming from disputed testimony by a city firemen's union boss that he gave O'Dwyer $10,000 as "evidence of the support" of the firemen.

The firemen's union official, who is under grand jury investigation on other scores, gave the testimony before the U. S. Senate crime probe committee.

Cash Gifts Revealed

Income tax and perjury investigations also are in store for James J. Moran, long time friend of O'Dwyer who now is U. S. ambassador to Mexico.

The investigations, ordered yesterday by the crime committee now meeting in Washington, resulted from the New York hearing testimony by John P. Crane, president of the AFL Uniformed Firemen's association.

Crane swore he gave $10,000 in cash to O'Dwyer and $55,000 to Moran, the former in a political campaign and the latter as goodwill offerings.

O'Dwyer and Moran both told the committee they never took money from Crane.

Somebody Is Lying

WASHINGTON — (AP) — President Truman today signed stopgap legislation extending the Federal Rent Control program for three months through June 30.

Without the extension the program would have expired at the end of this month and up to about 2,000,000 dwellings now under rent ceilings would be freed of controls.

Those dwellings are in communities which have not voted under the present law, to continue rent control through June. The extension keeps those units automatically under control until then, unless the community elects in the meantime to abandon rent curbs before June 30.

Packinghouse Workers Await Call To Strike

No Red Films In Hollywood

Rep. Potter Finds No Subversive Slants

By JOE HALL

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Rep. Potter (R-Mich.) said today he thinks the House Un-American Activities Committee's Hollywood investigation has not turned up any evidence of slanted movies.

Potter, a new member on the committee this session, told a reporter a principal purpose of the probe was to determine whether any subversive themes were being sneaked into U. S. film fare.

"Larry Parks told us he didn't think movies could be slanted and I believe that's right," the congressman said.

"There are so many people involved in making each picture that one person who might be a Communist couldn't have much influence. Even the preparation of the script, the first step, usually involves a large number of writers."

Screen Actor Parks admitted at a committee hearing Wednesday that he was a Communist party member from 1941 to 1945 but said he was and still is a "loyal American."

The committee is to resume its Hollywood probe April 10.

Potter said the other main aim of the investigation was to "dry up a big source of funds for the Communist party in the entertainment industry."

Shaw died last November at the age of 94.

His net estate, after settlement of all outstanding obligations, was £30,585 ($84,439). Estate taxes totaled £19,571 ($50,500).

Martin Says Election Is Important To Education

The coming election April 2 is an important one because it affects the fabric of education in Michigan, John B. Martin, Michigan state auditor general, told members of the New Republican Women's club yesterday afternoon.

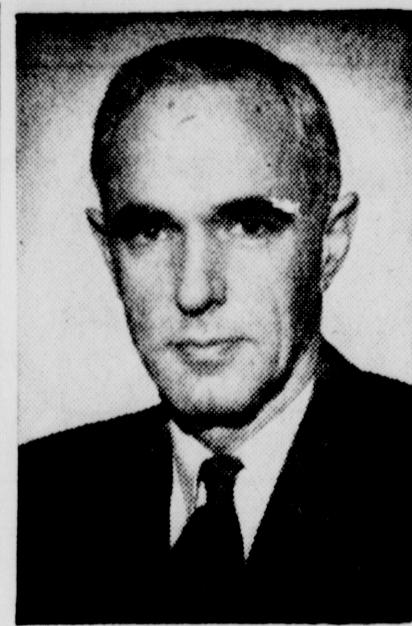

Speaking at a luncheon meeting in the Delta hotel, Martin reviewed the qualifications and records of the Republican slate of officers and urged members of the women's group to get out the vote in the coming election.

Earlier this week Martin spoke in Ironwood, in Iron and Dickinson counties and at Menominee to stimulate interest in the spring election, which usually draws only a light vote.

Reviews G. O. P. Record

Noting that all Republican candidates except Leland I. Doanne of Midland are incumbents, Martin stressed that Michigan ranks high in the education field, and that the men serving in the elective educational offices have had a part in building the system to its present level.

The speaker reviewed the records of Roscoe O. Bonisteel of Ann Arbor, a former president of the Michigan bar association, and Leland Doane, head of the Dow Chemical plant at Midland, GOP candidates for regent of the University of Michigan; Dr. Lee M. Thurston, candidate for reelection as superintendent of public instruction; Charles G. Burns of Detroit, candidate for member of the state board of education; Forrest H. Akers, retired automotive executive, and Frederick H. Mueller of Grand Rapids, GOP candidates for the state board of agriculture for Michigan State college; Emerson R. Boyles, former Michigan chief justice, and

JOHN B. MARTIN

Ned E. Reid, chief justice, who are candidates for justice of the state supreme court.

Lauds U. of M.

Martin pointed out that the University of Michigan is one of the top ten universities in the world and that Michigan stands fourth in the nation in the field of teachers' salaries, seventh in the number of high school graduates; sixth in the number of persons enrolled for vocational education; fourth in services to handicapped children and fifth in expenditures for new school sites and buildings.

Keeping the "isms" out of schools, to make certain no vested interests attempt to teach philosophies which lean politically in a direction not in keeping with the principles of the republic, are important, the speaker said.

Martin said special emphasis is placed in Michigan education on the teaching of American history and good citizenship, to provide young people with the information necessary to "make the Republic run."

Erickson Speaks

John G. Erickson, chairman of the Delta County Republican party, who spoke briefly at the meeting Thursday, told members of the GOP committee that measures to curb the taxing power of the federal government, are being considered. He expressed appreciation for the work of the Republican Women's club and reviewed some of the group's activities. Plans now are being considered, he said, to have Senator Robert Taft of Ohio speak here in June.

Speakers were introduced by Mrs. Stark Smith, who pointed out in opening remarks that civic courage is necessary in a democracy. Approximately 30 members were present.

At the conclusion of the meeting, plans were made for a meeting Monday night in the Delta hotel to outline plans for a telephone campaign to get out the vote election day.

Minor Accidents Reported Here

Icy pavements were blamed for three minor accidents which occurred here yesterday afternoon and this morning.

The right side of a car owned by Frank Adams of 116 North 20th street was extensively damaged last night when it was hit by a car driven by Raymond Robitaille of 403 Ludington street. The accident occurred at 6:49 p.m., at Second avenue North and North 19th street.

Earlier yesterday afternoon a car driven by Timothy M. Cassidy of 323 Ogden avenue collided with a car driven by Eileen Arbour of Bay View at Tenth and Ludington streets. The Arbour car was backing from the curb and was struck in the rear by the Cassidy car, going east on Ludington street.

This morning, police report, the right headlight and fender of a car driven by Dr. William LeMire of 318 Lake Shore Drive were damaged when struck by the rear of a truck owned by Leo Boudreau of 414 South Sixth street. The accident occurred at 8 a.m., at Second avenue south and Eighth street.

At the conclusion of the meeting, plans were made for a meeting Monday night in the Delta hotel to outline plans for a telephone campaign to get out the vote election day.

Big 4 Deputies Try To Out-Talk Gromyko

PARIS—(AP)—After nearly three weeks of fruitless effort, Big Four deputies hold their first informal secret session today, reportedly to decide whether to continue trying to work out an agenda for a foreign ministers conference on critical world problems.

What is said at the informal session will not be made public.

At a luncheon meeting yesterday the western deputy foreign ministers were reported to have talked "rather frankly" with Soviet Deputy Andrei Gromyko and to have indicated that unless signs of agreement were forthcoming quickly, the conversations should be broken off.

Gromyko, an informant said, indicated he would seek fresh instructions from Moscow. These are expected to be outlined at today's session.

Annette Gets Duck From California By Airplane

Annette Geist of Menominee got the duck she wanted Thursday—all the way from California. And the quacking duck brought a lot of joy to the 12 year old girl who has suffered from rheumatic fever for two years.

Two Michigan State Police officers, Sgt. Ed Goldsworthy and

Plant Gardens For More Food'Victory Projects' Will Be Revived

Cpl. Gordon Hanthorn of the Gladstone post, played a part in the delivery of the gift to little Annette.

Last month Annette saw the duck in newspaper picture. It was an angry duck and was chasing a little girl down an Oakland, Calif., street. If no one wanted that naughty duck, Annette wrote the Oakland police chief, she would like to have it.

Annette already had two dogs, three cats and a pig, and was fond of a neighbor's horse. She thought she was just the one to straighten out that bad tempered duck.

Chief Leslie Divine of Oakland couldn't get the duck that appeared in the picture. But he got one as much like it as possible, and an airline offered to fly it to Menominee. Michigan's State Police were alerted to meet the Wisconsin Central plane when it landed at Menominee. Officers Goldsworthy and Hanthorn took the duck to the Geist home, two miles north of Menominee.

Annette had been confined to her bed the last two weeks, but her mother let her get up Thursday. She named the duck Quackie and vowed it would never get far from her sight.

As the volunteer "green thumb" brigades get ready across the country, Americans may confidently recall the high level of success achieved by such citizen programs during the past. In 1917 the National War Garden Commission estimated that the nation's backyard and vacant-lot gardeners harvested crops valued at some $350,000,000.

It was a record for the time, but easily broken by the victory sowers of the last war. In 1943 some 20 million vegetable gardeners—an estimated six million more than in the prewar year of 1941—produced about eight million tons of food, enough to fill 160,000 freight cars.

A stroke which he suffered while lifting his nets at the northern end of Bay de Nocet was fatal yesterday afternoon to Hilmer Rudenberg, 57, of Ensign. He was dead upon arrival at the Medical Center in Gladstone where he was rushed by his son Francis, and George Wickstrom.

Mr. Rudenberg, who was a commercial fisherman, was born in Ensign February 25, 1894, and was a life-long resident of that community. He was a veteran of World War I, serving overseas in France, and was a member of Walter Cole Post, American Legion, Rapid River, and of Calvary Lutheran church, Rapid River.

Surviving are his wife, Tillie and the one son, his mother, Mrs. Jean Rudenberg of Racine; three sisters, Mrs. John Erickson, Emma and Mrs. George Faust, Racine; and two brothers, Oscar of Wauwatosa, Wis., and Victor of Ensign.

The body was taken to the Kelley funeral home in Gladstone. Arrangements for the services have not been completed.

Speedy Buildup Of Armed Forces Depicts American Determination

PRESIDENT TRUMAN announced Tuesday that the armed services of the United States has doubled in a period of only nine months to a force today of more than 2,900,000 men.

The tremendous acceleration of our defense forces is reflected in the fact that the size of our uniformed services today is greater than it was at the time of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor Dec. 7, 1941. In fact, it was several months after our entry in World War II before our defense forces attained the magnitude of our present uniformed services.

It is not particularly the size of our de-

Compromise Needed On Tax Situation

THE conference last week in Lansing attended by Governor Williams and key legislators failed to reach any agreement on new taxes needed to meet the state's financial requirements. Another attempt will be made next week when members of the legislature will meet again with the governor and will seek to reconcile differences.

The situation is one that requires compromising. Neither the Democratic governor nor the Republican legislature can enact any tax program without the cooperation of the other. And yet the necessity for more revenue is apparent to everyone. Unfortunately, agreement has not even been reached on how much additional revenue is required. The governor's deficit estimates in the past have been much higher than the deficits actually proved to be. Republicans say that the governor's estimates are still too high, purposely exaggerated to build support for his proposed corporations profits tax.

Republican legislators favor increased gasoline and weight taxes, which the governor opposes as consumer taxes. He has threatened to veto these tax proposals if passed by the legislature.

All of which means that unless compromises are reached, the state's highway maintenance program, already inadequately financed, will be further jeopardized and the state will continue to mount up annual deficits.

Mrs. Heart Alive—And In Better Health

THE Oklahoma City widow who is known to millions of American newspaper readers only as Mrs. Heart is still alive and in much improved health—two years after her dramatic story was published in Associated Press newspapers all over the world.

Mrs. Heart, you will recall, is the otherwise unidentified woman who in March, 1949, reported that heart specialists had informed her that she had only one year of life ahead. The woman announced that she had $10,000 to spend and sought advice on how she might best utilize this money in her final year of life.

Letters poured in by the thousands. Mrs. Heart decided that this old world is not such a cruel world after all. In March last year, it was reported that she was still alive and enjoying life. Another year has passed and it is gratifying to learn that Mrs. Heart is in improved health.

Perhaps the heart specialists erred in their diagnosis of the seriousness of Mrs. Heart's physical condition. It is more likely, however, that a new will to live, an improved state of mind, is responsible for her improved health. It provides hope for all persons in poor health that their condition can be improved, no matter how bad it may be.

Easter Seal Campaign Needs Your Support

THE annual Easter Seal campaign has been launched again by the Delta county chapter of the Society of Crippled Children and Adults.

Money contributed by the public is used to finance the varied activities of the organization. There are many things which the society does. It helps the handicapped get the medical care they need, including braces, physical therapy and other special services if required. In many cases the society helps to provide special schools and transportation to and from schools or medical centers.

An important part of the work of this organization includes vocational guidance—helping the handicapped to train for the kind of work they can do best. The society aids in the support of and serves as a clearing house for information on summer camps for crippled children.

Space prevents listing all the activities of this organization, but suffice it is to say it is doing much good in this field. Through the purchase of Easter Seals the public can give aid to a worthy cause.

Planting Bums

By Gordon Martin

You can wish for brilliant gardens and a landscape lush and green, which will make our modest domicile a very pretty scene. You can plan a wealth of colors that will glorify your land, but your efforts go for naught unless you have a magic hand. For there's some of us who aren't blessed with very skillful thumbs, and for every planting expert, there's a lot of planting bums.

You can read most every book there is on how to garden well, and you think you've learned the secret of the cultivator's spell. You can try to raise your flowers so that everyone will look, and like kids, you think that plants are brought up better by the book. But you're doomed to disappointment when you wait sufficient time, and you learn that what you planted is a dwarfed and weedy crime.

You can go and watch the thumb so green of those who know success, and with ease coax the ground to grow a multi-colored dress. And you think at last you've learned the trick but much to your despair, nothing grows upon your tended earth which stays so bald and bare. Then you must admit that yours is not an educated thumb, and no matter how you try, you'll always be a planting bum.

Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

PARIS—It is now more than two years since the foreign ministers of 12 nations met in solemn conclave in Washington and, accompanied by klieg lights and overseas broadcasts, signed the North Atlantic pact.

The purpose of that pact was to protect the liberty-loving democracies from Soviet aggression. In the two years that have passed, however, not one single division has been raised to block that aggression, and there has been no agreement on pooling of raw materials, no schedule for production, no program for propaganda and political warfare, and no coordination of intelligence reports—in brief, all that the North Atlantic pact countries have after two years of talking is a piece of paper plus an array of cumbersome committees which got in each other's way.

It was this emaciated skeleton of a defense organization that Gen. Dwight Eisenhower took over less than three months ago. Actually, he didn't exactly take it over, for Eisenhower, as supreme commander, reports back to "the standing group" in Washington, where Gen. Omar Bradley is his boss, and the standing group, in turn, takes orders from NATO, or the North Atlantic Pact Organization, in London.

Out of this tangled skein of red tape, however, Eisenhower has emerged as a contagious and forceful catalyst. Already his influence is being felt; already he has made European preparedness a partial reality. He doesn't talk in terms of so many troops here or so many troops there but in terms of goals, teamwork and cooperation.

The biggest thing Eisenhower has done, however, is to inspire confidence. There is a sort of contagious, almost spiritual, driving force about Eisenhower when he talks with his Allied colleagues. His job is partly one of public relations between governments, to get them to stop bickering over who will manufacture a three-inch fuse and how much they will be paid for it or who will make a 90-millimeter gun and what price they will charge for it. This is what NATO has been haggling over for two long years, and what Ike is trying to make them see is that having a certain command is not a question of prestige but an obligation and a responsibility.

Another thing Ike has done is to insist that every member of his international organization function as a team. If a Dane starts talking like a Dane, not as part of the team, he is through as far as Eisenhower is concerned.

MORALE BOOST SOON

The first big boost to North Atlantic pact morale will come early in April when America's first division of troops under NATO will dock at Havre, march up the Champs Elysees and then entrain for Germany.

This is going to be the biggest lift to European defense psychology since June, 1944, when Eisenhower landed other U. S. troops on the Normandy beachhead. However what has been diplomatically suggested to France and England is that they make this psychological impact even greater by adding one division each to the North Atlantic pact organization on the same day the American division lands.

Thus, as U. S. troops land at Havre, a British division would land at Cherbourg, with a French division joining them in Paris, and all three then entraining for the area where the Red army, if it strikes, would strike first—Germany.

Note—At present Eisenhower has only eight divisions to defend a 500-mile line from the Baltic to Switzerland if the Red army moves. On the other immediate side of this line the Russians have about 30 German divisions plus around 70 divisions in the Russian standing army. To meet this, France has promised 10 divisions this year and England five for Europe and five for other parts of the British empire.

IKE'S ON DIET

One of the first things Ike did to speed work at his Allied headquarters in the Astoria hotel in Paris was to abolish the typical two-or-three-hour Parisienne lunch. He did this by setting up a dining room at his headquarters and then putting an Englishman in charge of English foods so bad that the Allied officers spend only 30 minutes lunching.

Ike himself is dieting and gets a large plate of carrot salad put in front of him at lunch. Several months ago his doctor made Ike cut out smoking which meant that he began putting on weight, so now the doctor has not only put him on a diet but curtailed Ike to one evening cocktail per day.

PICTORIAL EVIDENCE that the American frontier is far from gone. Over great areas of the Pacific Northwest's timberlands pack horse travel is still the rule.

Old Frontier Still Flourishes In Many Parts Of United States

By WILLIAM ULLMAN

Like the report of Mark Twain's demise, the passing of the American frontier has been greatly exaggerated.

To hear most people talk, you would think all of the United States has become urban, all trails superhighways, over hundreds of square miles are exactly as they were when the pirate, Jean Lafitte, used them as a safe haven a century and more ago.

And this, no less than the kind which comes to mind more readily, is to all intents and purposes still a frontier, and is worthy of the mettle of present-day explorers.

Places which lend themselves to exploration, which retain the flavor and to some extent the surroundings of the past, and which in a definite sense are still part of the frontier, by no means all are in the Far West. True, there is a tradition of the frontier pushing ever westward; but to assume that this process has left everything in its wake in a state of figurative and literal streamlined-chromium-atomic modernity to overlook the facts.

Wilderness In Maine

For example, the woods and streams of northern Maine over large areas retain the same pristine quality which the first explorers found hundreds of years ago. A few hours from huge centers of population wild game abounds and life follows a pattern which would not be unfamiliar to the forebears of the sturdy down easters four and five generations removed.

Wilderness In Maine

Upon such relatively inaccessible inhabited islands as Smith's and Tangier, in Chesapeake Bay, one finds customs and traditions unchanged for many long years despite the presence of modern conveniences. Cut off from the main traffic stream—a situation which pleases these strongly individualistic folk mightily—the people of these islands, and indeed of the neighboring mainland of Virginia and Maryland as well, give evidence of the strongest roots in a much older America.

Again, strike off from the old Wilderness Trail, dipping down through West Virginia, Kentucky, and Tennessee.

The frontier gone? Only those who have never explored the mountain paths of this rugged region will make the mistake of thinking that. For nowhere does the present reveal the past more dramatically than here; and, indeed, throughout the whole of the land of the Great Smokies.

There, in spite of the many recent outside pressures upon it, the culture remains largely traditional and retains much of the full-bodied flavor of the past. Particularly among the older folk the language is rich in old English, Irish, and Scotch forms and crafts such as milling, cobbling, spinning and weaving are carried on as they were when the first settlers came in the wake of Boone and others to make their homes in what was to remain a virgin wilderness almost to the present hour.

Even with the changes which have come in late years it is certain that some of the mountain folk will continue to live in parts of this area out of reach of influences which tend to take them in advance that "Mass" meetings are being held throughout the country, at which the participants demand the nationalization of the oil wealth of Iran.

Although the first Red-inspired riot occurred before the Iranian Majlis (Parliament) on March 16, Moscow radio announced a month in advance that "Mass" meetings are being held throughout the country, at which the participants demand the nationalization of the oil wealth of Iran.

Stating that the position of the British imperialists in Iran "becomes ever more unstable," Moscow was also able to predict that the Majlis would enact the law to expropriate British and U. S. oil interests.

Lands of Seminoles

The Everglades of the deep South are a challenge and a contradiction to those who think of America only in terms of pavements, factory chimneys and neat white frame and brick suburbs. Here the Seminole Indians live; some, it is true, in tourist villages; others in the trackless interior, far from picture postal cards and gasoline stations, and under circumstances not much different from those in which Andrew Jackson found them when he fought their stalwart ancestors many years ago.

The bayous of Louisiana, vast, mysterious, a region of marsh and water, of great gnarled trees and thick shrub growths, over hundreds of square miles are exactly as they were when the pirate, Jean Lafitte, used them as a safe haven a century and more ago.

And this, no less than the kind which comes to mind more readily, is to all intents and purposes still a frontier, and is worthy of the mettle of present-day explorers.

Even so populous and industrialized a state as Pennsylvania has its frontier, for in the heavily wooded mountains of its western reaches thousands of larger animals still roam, and cement and macadam gives way to trails and Indian paths. And the same anomaly is found in a state like New York, famed for its great cities and centers of business and finance. For there remain many isolated spots which can be reached only by shank's mare.

And one can find woods and marshlands on Staten Island—which is one of the five boroughs of New York City—where wild life abounds and Stone Age tools can be picked up, just five miles across the bay from Wall Street.

Much Game In U. P.

Few think of the frontier still existing in the industrialized and long-settled farmlands of the Middle West. Yet, paradoxically, it is a Middle Western State, one of the world's great centers of heavy industry, that contains some of the most rugged terrain in all America. The Upper Peninsula of Michigan, a few hours flying time from Detroit, is still a great timber-producing area—and it is this region which gives Michigan the surprising distinction of having a larger big game population than any other state in the Union.

It seems odd but it is true that in Michigan is more game than in any of the huge, sparsely populated states of the Far West. Official Federal statistics prove it beyond a doubt, providing further evidence that the frontier not only has not disappeared but actually may not be far from one's very door.

Down through the Middle West courses the mighty Mississippi, and only those who never have followed the Father of Waters for any distance will believe it affords no further opportunities for exploration. As it passes great

Moscow Tries Phony Revolt To Grab Iran

By LEON DENNEN
NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—Soviet Russia is maneuvering to seize Iran through a phony internal revolution, Czechoslovak style, according to Allied intelligence reports from the Middle East.

The Cominform is said to be behind the outbreak of Iranian "spontaneous" demonstrations demanding the nationalization without indemnity of British-controlled $50,000,000 Anglo-Iranian Oil Co.

One of the world's richest oil-producing countries, Iran is also the key hinterland to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's strategic defenses in the Middle East.

Thirty Red divisions—three of them Polish armored units—are said to be based on the 1500-mile Soviet-Iranian frontier. Nevertheless, it is considered unlikely that Moscow would provoke a general war at this time through armed invasion of Iran.

A clue to the Cominform's strategy, however, is believed to be contained in secret instructions bequeathed by Radio Moscow to the outlawed pro-Communist Tudeh Party Feb. 16. A copy of the instructions was recently received by U. S. intelligence.

The Kremlin, according to the broadcast—one of several—was able to forecast a month in advance the latest round of "spontaneous" anti-government demonstrations in Iran.

Although the first Red-inspired riot occurred before the Iranian Majlis (Parliament) on March 16, Moscow radio announced a month in advance that "Mass" meetings are being held throughout the country, at which the participants demand the nationalization of the oil wealth of Iran.

Stating that the position of the British imperialists in Iran "becomes ever more unstable," Moscow was also able to predict that the Majlis would enact the law to expropriate British and U. S. oil interests.

The present trouble in Iran is ostensibly due to a dispute between the government and the Anglo-Iranian Oil Co., whose concession does not expire until 1993.

The Iranians claim 50 per cent of the company's profits. Pointing to high expenses for investments, repairs, and wages—the highest paid in Iran—the Anglo-Iranian Oil Co., though ready to negotiate an increase in oil royalty rates, is not willing to disgorge 50 per cent.

Obviously taking advantage of the deadlock, Moscow is stimulating tension, strikes, demonstrations and acts of violence to pave the way for an internal "revolution" in Iran and the seizure of power by the Communists.

Conservation At Crossroads

Governor Holds Key To Program Future

By JAMES A. O. CROWE
LANSING—(P)—The death of Conservation Director P. J. Hoffmaster this week ended an era in Michigan conservation, and Michigan sportsmen and conservationists are hoping that the new era is going to be at least as good.

Hoffmaster stood for a program that is conceded to have been among the most advanced in the world.

He took more abuse and withstood more vicious attacks than anyone will ever know to protect the principles of advanced conservation.

He stood squarely back of his division chiefs when they made recommendations for reducing artificial fish plantings, for reducing pheasant plantings and for concentrating on habitat improvement in both fish and game management.

Concern Is Felt

It was his broad vision and pioneering spirit that led him into such wholehearted support of the conservation education program in Michigan schools. It simply seemed to him more efficient, more economical and more effective to train good conservationists when they are young than to spend a lot of money for an enforcement staff to put them in jail when they are old.

From the day he joined the department in 1922 in charge of the parks division, he was building Michigan's state park system. When he died it was one of the greatest in the nation.

This was Hoffmaster's era, marked by great progress which brought Michigan into leadership in the country in game and fish licenses sold, in deer population and as a tourist state.

A lot of people are genuinely concerned over the future. If the wrong kind of a man is appointed to succeed Hoffmaster, his gains can be wiped out overnight.

Williams' Commission

No one demands that Hoffmaster be duplicated. That probably can't be done. They only ask for a man of ability—one who can overcome the short-term advantages of listening to pressure groups—one who can keep always in mind the interest of all the people.

The conservation commission will select the new director, but many people are looking to Governor Williams to see what part

Truman's Stock Has Gone Down

Fixers In Capital Injure Prestige

By MARQUIS CHILDS

WASHINGTON—In the interval that President Truman has been out of Washington a great deal has happened. While the control and direction exercised by the administration has been weakened, there is now the sense of the absence of any control over the course of events.

Whether, as he returns to the capital, Mr. Truman can reassert a degree of leadership is a question. Certainly, if he persists in following the pattern of the past, the answer is a large and emphatic no. Then the only outcome can be further conflict, decline and disintegration in almost every department.

The president has repeatedly shown that he has a strong feeling for history. He indicated at his last press conference that he is already thinking of his own place in the American record.

During his Florida vacation it must have seemed to Mr. Truman's contemporaries that he was about to disappear entirely from view. Leaving behind, like the Cheshire cat in Alice in Wonderland, only that determined grin.

And most of his contemporaries feel that that is not exactly a priceless heritage. Surely, as an able politician, the president must be aware of the need for a new direction, a new and bold tack.

As historian and politician, he cannot help but realize that his place in the record may in a general collapse be permanently obscured under the debris.

Moral Values Decline

In the roar of influence and favoritism unfolded before Senate investigating committees there is nothing startlingly new. The vast sums of government money spent during and after World War II gave greater opportunity for the whole tribe of Washington fixers and lobbyists. This was coupled with the general decline in moral values, which is the other side of the coin of sacrifice and patriotism called forth in a war.

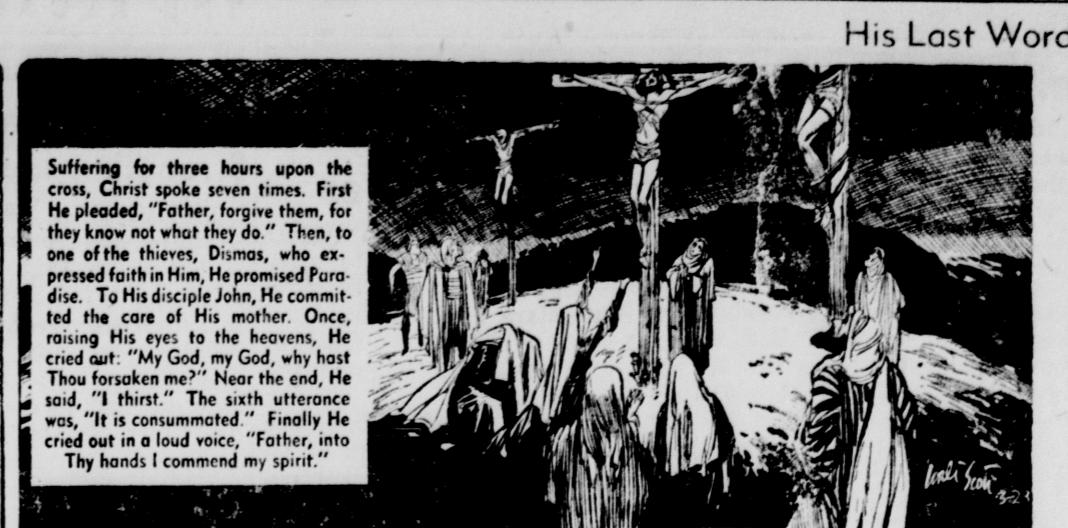

But in the public mind the blame for this miserable and sordid business is being fastened exclusively on the Truman administration and the Democratic party. The president cannot shake it off by offhand remarks such as his denunciation of the Fulbright committee's report on the RFC as asinine.

Senator Fulbright has proposed appointment of a commission to

The Way To Calvary

On the cross above the head of Jesus was nailed an inscription written by Pilate: "Jesus of Nazareth, King of the Jews." Caiphas demanded it be changed to: "He said I am king," but Pilate stubbornly refused.

Suffering for three hours upon the cross, Christ spoke seven times. First He pleaded, "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do." Then, to one of the thieves, Dismas, who expressed faith in Him, He promised Paradise. To His disciple John, He committed the care of His mother. Once raising His hand to the heavens, He cried out: "My God, my God, why hast Thou forsaken me?" Near the end, He said, "I thirst." The sixth utterance was, "It is consummated." Finally He cried out in a loud voice, "Father, into Thy hands I commend my spirit."

His Last Words

North and South, steps now are being taken by the federal government to set aside wilderness areas, small and large, which are to remain in their primitive state forever as monuments to the brave men and women out of whose courage and sacrifice this nation was forged.

Three types of land in the national forests have been set aside. They are wilderness areas, wild areas, and roadless areas.

No city or town is without its forgotten and bypassed woodlands and quiet villages nearby, and within a short radius of every metropolis there are streams, off the beaten paths, which can be followed as the pioneers did; islands still thick in timber and strewn with fossils and arrowheads; and lonely caves which are as full of mystery and beauty as any in which families once took refuge on the trails of long ago.

Yes, there is very much of an American frontier—3,000 miles or as likely, just 30 miles away.

study the relationship between government employees and those who seek to influence them. Senator Douglas of Illinois is working out a new code that would apply rules to the whole field of those in and out of government who seek special favors. He expects to present this as an amendment to the administrative procedures act.

Truman Could Help

Here, it seems to me, is an opportunity that the president should seize if he wishes to retrieve something of his personal position and, more important, the position of his party. While a commission may not be the answer, it should be possible for the president to take the lead in calling for both study and reform.

And the reform could begin, quietly and without fanfare, some changes in his own official and in the relationship between cities and populous towns, so to do cities it flow majestically or meander gently along some banks almost as deserted as in De Soto's time.

In the Middle West and South Dakota's Badlands and its Black Hills, still a rugged wilderness, and here are hamlets a hundred miles from a railroad whose old inhabitants still remember Wild Bill Hickock and Calamity Jane. And south are the Ozarks of Arkansas, as rewarding a field for exploration as ever was.

Old Frontier Still Flourishes In United States

Let anyone who thinks there is no frontier try his hand at solving the mazes of the Wasatch Mountains of Utah; of California's Death Valley; the deep interior of Arizona and New Mexico; the trackless sagebrush of Nevada and Wyoming; or stand very much alone upon a limitless plain far from the main highways or from airports and railroad stations. To be sure there are dude ranches and motor courts; and all of the accoutrements of the modern age. It is true that there are movies and radios where once the Pony Express thundered across prairie and mountain; and neon-signed Las Vegas gets itself written about, with pictures, in the magazines.

Let anyone who thinks there is no frontier try his hand at solving the mazes of the Wasatch Mountains of Utah; of California's Death Valley; the deep interior of Arizona and New Mexico; the trackless sagebrush of Nevada and Wyoming; or stand very much alone upon a limitless plain

Big Bend National Park

The president could, of course, go much further than this. If he were deeply interested in a place somewhere near the heroes he talks about—Jefferson, Jackson, Lincoln—he could go on to an appraisal of the office of the presidency in a world as complicated as ours has become. It is today almost literally an impossible office, burdened with duties and responsibilities, with a minutiae of red tape, with ceremonies and formalities, and always in a system where power is divided and sometimes hopelessly divided in time of crisis.

School Records Are Destroyed

'Padding Enrollment Lists Admitted'

LITCHFIELD, Mich. — (AP) — Former school superintendent Hubert M. Bearss admitted today he destroyed Litchfield township school enrollment records in hopes of frustrating an investigation.

Prosecutor Sheldon H. Ellis of Hillsdale county said Bearss made the admission in the office of his attorney before a state police detective and himself.

Fired earlier this week on charges of padding his school enrollment lists to get more state aid, Bearss said that he had destroyed missing records for the 1949-50 school year.

He has already admitted padding the lists with names of migrant children who did not attend the Litchfield township school.

Detective Charles H. Southworth of the Michigan state police signed a complaint and Justice Harley Brandon immediately issued a warrant for Bearss' arrest.

He was to be arraigned later today on a charge of mutilating and destroying public records. Conviction would carry a top penalty of two years imprisonment and $1,000 fine.

Johnny Lindell Turns Pitcher

Former Yank Halts White Sox Streak

(By The Associated Press)

It took a minor league team and a former major league star to end the Chicago White Sox's gaudy eight-game exhibition winning streak.

The team, Hollywood of the Pacific coast league, stopped the Chisox, 6 to 2, last night in movie-land. The player, Johnny Lindell, one-time Yankee slugger, silenced the Chicago bats with a one-hit pitching effort.

Lindell, the pitcher turned outfielder turned pitcher again, hurled five innings for Hollywood. His knuckle ball had the Chicagoans hitting in the dirt. He left with a 5-0 lead.

Robinson Homers

In another night game, the Brooklyn Dodgers thumped the Philadelphia Phillies, 8-3, under the Miami moon. Jackie Robinson's three-run homer in the third inning iced the decision for the Brooks.

A Brooklyn castoff, first baseman Kevin Connors, brought the Chicago Cubs an 8 to 7 victory over Cleveland. His single with bases loaded in the 10th inning snapped a 7-7 tie. Cub Manager Frankie Frisch was ejected from the game in the ninth inning for protesting a call by Umpire Bill Grieve.

The Yankees snapped a three-game losing streak in decisive fashion, blasting Sacramento, 11 to 0, at Sacramento. Mickey Mantle, the youngster being groomed to fill Joe DiMaggio's shoes, smacked a three-run homer to highlight the New Yorkers' 15-hit assault.

Slam Two Homers

Clyde McCullough and rookie Dale Long uncorked homers as the Pittsburgh Pirates ended St. Louis' three-game winning streak, winning 13-4.

But a dinky old single by Gene Mauch gave the Boston Braves an 11-10 edge on the Cincinnati Reds. The 10th inning blow sent Earl Torgeson scooting home with the winning run.

At Sarasota, Fla., the Washington Senators nipped the Boston Red Sox, 6-5, on the seven-hit pitching of Sid Hudson and Gene Bearden. And at St. Petersburg, the St. Louis shaded the New York Giants, 2-1, on Hal Aice's pinch-hit home run in the third inning.

The Peoria, Ill., Caterpillar Diesels steamed over Denver Chevrolets, 78-53.

Phillips 66ers from Bartlesville, Okla., won over the Dayton, Ohio, Air Gems, 76-50. San Francisco Stewart Chevrolets had an 85-42 frolic over the Sioux City, Iowa Jamics.

Worst Drought Hits Holy Land At Easter Time

number of foreign diplomats in the Holy Land.

Arabs Barred

It was announced that Jaffa gate in the old city walls will be opened Sunday to permit the Jerusalem consular corps to enter the old city along the traditional route. The old city is in the hands of Jordan while the new city is controlled by Israel.

Permits were issued to allow other pilgrims safe passage across the Israel-Jordan armistice lines to enter the ancient city through the Mandelbaum gate and to visit Bethlehem.

Diplomats from the Jewish side of the guarded barbed-wire frontier line will come along street still surrounded by rubble and destruction of the 1948 fighting.

Official Jordan sources said the Jews are not permitting Arab Christians living in Israel to cross the lines for the ceremonies.

Country Uneasy

An air of uneasiness over the world's peace is evident in Jerusalem this Easter season. Both Christian and Moslem residents ask visitors from abroad "will there be war?"

Situated in the heart of the middle east, Jerusalem and the Jordan kingdom particularly are worried now over recent disturbances in Iran, the neighbor of Russia which has embarked upon nationalization of her rich oil industry. Oil pipelines from Saudi Arabia and Iraq now thread their way to their Mediterranean terminals not many miles north of the Holy City—at Sidon and Tripoli in nearby Lebanon.

The bright sun of the past few weeks has brought no cheer to those living in the Holy Land cities and surrounding Judean Hills. Crops are suffering from a lack of rain. Springs and cisterns are running dry. The drought is especially hard on thousands of refugees from the Palestine war living in dilapidated tents.

One informant said the so-called rainy season now ending had the smallest precipitation since 1870—only one-third of normal.

This source said the ancient pools of Solomon, which provide water for Bethlehem, are falling at a time when they should be at their fullest. Ain Farah and other springs supplying Jerusalem also were reported failing.

The drought was broken briefly by a sudden shower last Sunday which put off the usual Palm Sunday procession but the amount of rainfall was pitifully inadequate.

French Workers Offered Pay Boost To Avert Strikes

PARIS — (AP) — Premier Henri Queuille today prepared to offer French workers a more than 10 per cent salary boost in an effort to halt the spreading wave of strikes, which have crippled the nation's rail system.

In an early morning statement to parliament near the end of an all-night session on electoral reforms, the premier said the cabinet will take action later in the day on the report from a special commission on collective bargaining.

The commission reported yesterday that the cost of living in France has risen more than 12 per cent since last August.

It recommended that the government boost the national basic minimum wage by 12.5 per cent to correspond with higher living costs.

Piano Feared Lost In Flight To Detroit From Hartford, Conn.

BUFFALO, N. Y. — (AP) — The U. S. Coast Guard said today it is searching for a large single engine Cessna plane believed missing on a flight from Hartford, Conn., to Detroit.

The CAA expressed fear that freezing rain may have caused it to crash land.

The CAA said the plane was traveling with another similar craft. The missing plane bore registration number N9394-A. The second plane landed safely at Utica.

Supply Road Taken

Ridgway, a paratrooper himself, landed among the air-dropped troops in a light observation plane 29 minutes after the first chutist was unveiled in Warsaw. It was exhibited in Moscow in 1898, and in 1900 Styka brought it to America for the St. Louis exhibition.

But when a fire destroyed his "Quo Vadis" paintings, he decided to store the "Crucifixion" instead of showing it.

It has been in storage ever since, except for a brief display in Chicago Opera House 40 years ago. The problem: It was too huge to be conveniently displayed.

Forest Lawn acquired it in 1944. Now mounted on a curving wall in a hall with 3,000 seats, it will be shown to the public daily.

Viewers will hear its story in a recorded lecture. A spotlight, synchronized with the sound track, will point out the object being discussed.

India Has No Luck Trying To End Conflict In Korea

NEW DELHI — (AP) — India has made another fruitless try to find a pathway through which to introduce the Chinese Communists to discuss peace, it was learned here yesterday.

The only mishap of the huge airdrop was the explosion of a C-119 flying boxcar cargo plane in the air after it delivered its paratroopers.

AP Correspondents Tom Stone and John Randolph, who witnessed the airdrop from accompanying planes, said there apparently was no apparent contact with enemy ground troops by the paratroopers at the initial landing.

The paratroopers landed in an area less than a mile long. They were within Red positions described by intelligence as 15 miles deep.

It was the second airborne landing of the war. The first, on a smaller scale, was in North Korea, northwest of the Red capital of Pyongyang, last Oct. 20 and 21.

Don't Be Afraid To Call Hate By Its Right Name

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

Mrs. W. is a good mother. She says to her five-year-old Steve: "If you play with matches, you may get burned. If you tell lies, you won't like yourself. Those glossy green leaves are poison ivy."

But for some reason, Mrs. W., wiping tears from her little boy's cheek, seldom says: "Why did the big boy knock you down? I guess he was just having a little attack of hate, son."

That is what she should say. Hate is the word she should use.

"Children reach the age of life with a bandage over their eyes and reason," said France's great writer de Maupassant.

The juvenile correctional institutions of our country are filled with children who never were taught how to recognize hate and do something about it.

Teaching a child how to detect hate is simple, if we are not afraid of calling it by its name.

Mrs. W. might say to Steve: "Hate can be spotted by the squirming feelings it gives you. Poison ivy makes you itch; hate makes you feel ugly, unimportant and no good to anyone. Love sees us as good; hate sees us as bad. When you feel you are a bad boy, it is because you have brushed against some hate somewhere."

Teaching Steve how to treat hate is just as simple. It is teaching him to be convinced of his own goodness.

If he is convinced that he is good, hate won't frighten him. Instead of bringing home a cut chin to his mother, he will come home beaming.

"Today a big kid said I stole his lunch apple," Steve will say, "I said, 'That's a lie. Take it back and I'll give you half of my apple.' So he took the lie back, and gave me a piece of his cake."

If Mrs. W. has taught her growing son to read his Bible intelligently, she might say to him one day, "Why do you suppose the Bible stories always make snakes represent hate, son?"

If she has done a good job on teaching hate detection and treatment, Steve will say, "That's easy. Because snakes can hypnotize."

Mrs. W. has taken the bandage off Steve's eyes.

Effect On M-28Emergency Limits
Issued By State

Emergency load restrictions are now in effect on M-28, between Seney and Wetmore, it is announced by Eugene Johnson, engineer for the Schoolcraft county road commission.

Restrictions were ordered by the state highway department in an order issued early in March and later revised to provide for more stringent regulations.

The revised order temporarily restricts weight limits to 9,000 pounds per axle where the axle spacing is nine feet or more, and to 6,500 pounds where the axle spacing is less than nine but more than three and one-half feet.

M-28 was relocated and reconstructed last year from Shingleton to the Schoolcraft county line, four miles west of Creighton. The rest of the highway, from the county line to Seney, is in a deteriorated condition and the weight restrictions are intended to preserve the road surface as much as possible from damage during the spring break-up.

Emergency restrictions, however, cover both unimproved and reconstructed parts of the highway.

Additional reconstruction work is planned for 1951 on the unimproved portion, it is reported.

Construction work also is scheduled on a three and one-half mile stretch of M-77, from Seney north.

Load restrictions on other state highways in the county as well as various county roads will be announced when the spring break-up occurs, the county engineer said.

Afternoon Circle

The Afternoon circle of the Women's association of the Presbyterian church met on Wednesday afternoon at the church.

The business meeting was led by Mrs. Alfred Kristofferson. Plans were made concerning the Presbytery meeting at Escanaba on April 25 and 26.

Rev. Paul Sobel gave a short review of the book, "Introducing Islam," by J. Christy Wilson. The book concerned the Mohammedan religion. It showed the appreciation of Mohammedans religion in preparing for his inauguration as President.

George P. McCallum, who was local representative in the state legislature, was then introducing a bill to incorporate Manistique as a city, Herbert said. The day followed Jewell's initiation the Schoolcraft county court house burned down, he continued.

Old News Reviewed

Other local news items, taken from an issue of the local newspaper published 50 years ago, told of plans for the Elks first ball and reception in the building now occupied by the Manistique Garage company, the speaker stated. Various other news items current in that issue, such as a runaway horse, a street fight between two Manistique professional men, and big sales by local stores, were reviewed by Herbert.

"The news item didn't mention names, but I suspect the street fight was between two attorneys", said Herbert, who has been a prominent lawyer here for many years and also is a regent of the University of Michigan.

The speaker also read two letters written to Ben Gero, sr., who died Jan. 1, 1951, concerning the organization of an Elks lodge in Manistique. One was from the Cheboygan lodge advising Gero how to proceed with the formation of a new Elks lodge, and the other from the Grand Lodge telling Gero of arrangements for initiation of the charter class in December, 1900.

In concluding his talk Herbert presented Jewell with a ring on behalf of the Elks.

In accepting the gift, Jewell reminisced, too, on the old days in Manistique, filling in details from memory of the news articles Herbert had quoted.

33 Gladstone Teams Enter U. P. Bowling Tournament

St. Joe Boosters Fete Trojans Cagers

Members of the St. Joseph high school basketball team, cheer leaders, reserve team and coaches will be guests of honor at a roasting banquet next Wednesday night at 6 o'clock at the St. Joseph parish hall.

Steve Baltic, coach of the Escanaba high school team, will be the principal speaker.

The banquet is sponsored by the St. Joseph Boosters club and parents of the players and cheer leaders.

Marcel Guindon is chairman of arrangements for the evening which, besides the dinner, will feature musical entertainment, games and presentation of letters to team members.

The Trojans had one of their best seasons in history this year, winning the Parochial and district tournaments and losing in the Upper Peninsula finals to Soo Loretto by only two points.

How Can Red Sox Lose? Fans Ask

SARASOTA, Fla. — Once more the cymbals crash and the drums go bang for the mighty Boston Red Sox, perennial March champions of the American League.

"How can they lose?" They chant in the spring. "How did they lose?" They moan in October.

Steve O'Neill, starting his first full year as Joe McCarthy's successor, carries a heavy load on his broad shoulders. Maybe.

Steve O'Neill with a new boss and some new players, its best to erase the slate and start from scratch.

The Red Sox definitely are improved by the addition of Lou Boudreau, Bill Wight and Ray Scarborough. Without crippling themselves, they added infield insurance of A-No. 1 grade and

Catching Uncertain

O'Neill plans to use Lou Boudreau, former Cleveland manager and shortstop star, as a fill-in at all infield posts. Lou has been hitting the ball hard in the exhibitions and he could outlast one of the regulars.

The "big five" of the pitching staff are Mel Parnell (18-10), Bill Wight (10-16), Ray Scarborough (13-18), Willard Nixon (8-6) and Harry Taylor, who won two for Boston after his 13-9 year at St. Paul.

Catching is the Sox's one uncertain factor. Birdie Tebbets, of course, has gone to Cleveland. Al Evans (.235) was acquired from Washington and Mike Guerra (282) from Philadelphia. Buddy Rosar (.298) may win the job. Youngest of the bunch is Matt Batts (.273). Only three of the four will survive a better than fair chance that Cuban Guerras will wind up with Washington.

Hershey defeated Indianapolis, 4 to 3, last night to assume a strangle-hold on their best-of-five set. Cleveland, the Western division champion, whipped Buffalo's Eastern winners, 7 to 2. This series, however, is on a best-of-seven basis, so Buffalo is in a much better position than Indianapolis.

Eddie Olson, brother of Escanaba's Marc and Ted Olson, is a member of the Cleveland Barons.

Kesslers Play At Hermansville

HERMANSVILLE — Class A teams swing into action tonight for the first time in the Hermansville gold medal tournament with Cooks Bombers meeting Hermansville Foxes at 9 o'clock and Escanaba Kesslers meeting Niagara Badgers at 10 o'clock.

In two class B games tonight, Wausauke will tangle with Alphal at 7 and Stephenson will meet the Iron Mountain Four Lanes at 8 o'clock.

Cooks was to have played the Manistique Chevs tonight but the latter team dropped out so the Bombers were matched with the Foxes, which had drawn a bye.

Frisk Scores 31

Last night in the feature game Hermansville Rodmans nipped the strong Baraga Stars, 55-51, in a game that featured several Northern Michigan college aces playing for Hermansville and several Michigan Tech boys for Baraga.

Wayne Nystrom of Northern whipped in 12 points to lead Rodmans but his efforts were topped by Jerry Mayo, sensational Baraga high school star, who netted 17 points.

Bill Johnson led Stephenson to an easy 45-31 win over Joes of Hermansville with 26 point scoring effort for high honors. Scoring for the losers was evenly divided.

Calvin Frisk scored 31 points as Michigamme whipped Norway Yorkies, 68-40. Dick DeBakker of Norway scored 13 points.

In somewhat of an upset, Norway Four Lanes nipped Menominee Jozwiaks, 49-47, as Ted Monrore scored 13 points. Dick Miette of Menominee scored 20. The Jozwiaks played without their ace, Harold Titus, Menominee high school coach.

Spilling The Dope

By Charlie Larson

The mother of a Nahma high school cager writes to say how grateful she is to the fans who donated $250 to send Coach Babe Anderson and the Arrows to the state finals at Lansing . . . "Don't you think this was a wonderful gesture for a small town?", she asks . . . yes, indeed, we do.

Earl (Poggy) Mattila of Republic, a first year bowler with a 14 average, rolled a perfect 300 game the other night at Republic alleys . . . to prove it was no fluke, he followed his 12-strike spree with a 225 game.

Note to Marquette burglars: Don't let the owner of the gas station you cracked the other night get hold of you . . . Merle Pfotenauer could tear your limb from limb . . . and he'd probably do it, too.

Talk about stiff competition . . . seven of the first 12 games in the gold medal tournament at Hermansville this week were won by not more than four points . . . two were by one point . . . plenty of classy college and ex-high school cagers are competing.

If you have been wondering about Calumet beating Portage Lake for the Northern Wisconsin-Michigan league play-off, perhaps this is the answer . . . in the championship game, Joe Bukovich was in a hospital having his appendix excised and Bernie Ruelle was on the side lines with a bone fracture . . . Frank "Pop" Gresnick, the colorful Radar veteran, may have suffered a nose fracture in the game.

The Cleveland Indians apparently are hard up for a first base coach . . . they signed up Rudy York, the former Detroit Tiger who never was any great shakes as a first baseman (although he could powder the old apple).

Of the 15 Marquette cagers who received letters, only five will return to Graverat next season . . . the rest are seniors.

They said Gladys carried with her an autographed picture of Detroit outfielder Vic Wertz, a scrapbook of Tiger players' pictures—and a change of clothing.

Attorneys for the youths protested the high bonds. But recorder Judge George Murphy rejected the protest "because they are charged with a very serious crime."

Portage Lake and Calumet were held for trial. The three were arrested Monday after the holdup of the Joseph Valente jewelry store.

More Archers Hunt For Deer

Reports Are Made By License Dealers

The state had a record number of bow and arrow hunters last year but possibly fewer firearm deer hunters, small game hunters and fishermen. This is according to license dealer reports received by the conservation department to March 1.

Resident bow and arrow hunting permits total 14,463 so far, as compared to a final 11,937 in 1949, the previous record. Agents report a new high in nonresident permits as well, 792 compared to a final 668 in 1949.

Consistent with the fall deer season report of a smaller hunting army are license agent reports of 362,394 resident deer license sales as against a final 375,077 in 1949. Nonresident deer hunters numbered about the same, 7,049 as compared to 7,212 before.

Resident small game hunting licenses recorded so far add up to 607,808 while the 1949 final was 624,733. However, nonresident small game permits already total more than in the previous period. The department has a record of 4,939 issued as against a 1949 final of 4,031.

Continuation of the decline in resident fishing license sales is reflected in latest agent reports. Tally to date is 783,768 in contrast to a final 819,702 in 1949. Temporary nonresident sales amount to 134,589 as compared to 154,740 before. Nonresidents continue to buy more annual angling permits, 129,368 as against 1949's final 127,430. Trout stamp sales still are down, 169,690 issued as compared to 182,058 before.

Fall trapping license permits number 13,124 while 18,129 were issued the previous fall. Final 1950 returns may show the third smallest fall trapping force since licenses were first required in 1935. But 1950 spring beaver and otter license sales were much better than in the 1949 spring, 5,046 contrasted to 1,579. A larger force of trappers is expected to be out this spring.

Superior Storm Nearly Wrecked Arctic Canoe Trip

W. Emerson Scott, traveler and lecturer, who last year completed a 5,000 canoe trip deep into the Canadian Arctic will present his unusual colored motion picture lecture "To the Arctic by Canoe" at the William W. Oliver Memorial auditorium here on Tuesday night at 8:15 p. m. under sponsorship of the Wolverine Conservation association.

The program moves rapidly and relates the most interesting and exciting events of the journey.

One of the "narrow escapes" on the canoe trip Scott recalls, came one foggy day last May along the Michigan shore of Lake Superior in the Pictured Rocks area. Scott attributes the escape to advice he had obtained from reading the log of Alexander Mackenzie's 18th century exploring expedition.

Mackenzie had written often times the only warning he had of approaching severe storms in that portion of his journey had been great waves rising without storm clouds or winds noticeable.

Scott and his 20-year-old companion were traveling along in the cold shadows of towering cliffs which prevent small craft from landing.

"We noticed the water beginning to rise and fall, slapping against the base of the cliffs. It seemed little to be concerned about at first but the force and height of the waves continued to increase so we put in at the first tiny beach we came to . . . one of three in the whole area," Scott recalls.

"Ten minutes after we landed chunks of ice, broken from islands of ice aground on reefs a hundred feet off shore, began pounding on to the beach. Though powerful waves were rolling so suddenly I was able to light my pipe without shielding the match, for there was no wind. The wind and the real storm came during the night."

It is thought a pressure area ahead of the storm caused the great waves. The two adventurers were marooned on the lonely beach three days.

Such are the colorful events to be seen and heard about at the Junior high auditorium on next Tuesday night. Tickets are now being sold by members of the Wolverine Conservation association.

$2,600,000 In Loans Granted To Farmers

WASHINGTON—(P)—The government has put up more than $2,600,000 in loans to raisers of potential mink coats and silver fox capes in the past 22 months. The money was advanced by the Agriculture Department's Farmers Home Administration under a program of financial aid to "distressed" farmers which Congress approved early in 1949.

The average loan to fur ranchers was six times as big as similar loans to growers of such farm staples as wheat and corn. Fur loans averaged $6,700, compared with $1,150 for staple commodities.

Marcus B. Braswell, director of the agency's Disaster Loan Division, said the largest fur loan was $300,000, but he refused to say who got it.

"That's confidential information," he explained. "We have a policy of not giving out the names of borrowers. Such transactions involve the business of private individuals with the government and we feel the information should not be divulged."

He said 397 fur loans "from $500 up" have been made. The disaster loans are designed to give financial aid to farmers whose crops are hard hit by pests and bad weather and to fur farmers unable to borrow needed funds from private institutions.

Unlike other growers, fur ranchers are not required to show production losses to get a loan. Their "financial distress" can be evidenced by a statement of outstanding debts and assets and ability to repay the Government eventually.

Fur loans under $12,000 are processed and approved by state F.H.A. officials. Bigger ones must go to Washington for approval.

Mr. Braswell said he didn't know how many loan of $12,000 or more have been approved by his office and "it would take time to count them up."

Sports Film Program
GULLIVER — The Recreation Club, made up of members of the local baseball and basketball teams, sponsored two movies, "Circling the Bases," and "World Series of 1945," Tuesday evening, March 20, at the Whiteside school. Edwin Johnson has contacted the American and National leagues of professional baseball players at Chicago for rental of films to be shown later on, sponsored by the Recreation club and the Gulliver community planning club. Other sources have been contacted for films—the state film library, University of Michigan, the audio-visual education center at Ann Arbor, Bell and Howell Co., Field & Stream magazine and Outdoor Life magazine.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Klagstad are the parents of a son born on Sunday, March 18, at Memorial hospital. Mrs. Klagstad is the former Janet Gillette.
